From the London Papers, April 18.

Vienna, April 4. On Easter Sunday the Pope performed the ceremony of laying Mals, and gave his blessing to the congregation; but this solemnity was not so pompous as expected, to the great disappointment of several curious people, as the Emperor was not present, having excused himself to the Pontiff the evening before, on account of the disorder in his eyes.

In short, this distemper has increased for several days past, and fresh blisters have been applied. The Archduke Maximilian accompanied his Holiness in an old state coach, with the Cardinals that were here; but none of the grandees were in the train, which was closed by a detachment of the garde de police, which usually attend the judges. It is more than probable that the flay of the Holy Father will alter nothing of the intentions of our Monarch, and his last answer to certain articles appears decisive in this respect.

Paris, April 7. According to the last letters from Cadiz, great preparations are making for the siege of Gibraltar, immense quantities of stores and provisions daily arriving from all parts, at Algeiras. His Catholic Majesty has bought, or freighted at Cadiz, all the large ships employed in the trade to the Indies. They are fitted up in such a manner as to resist the greatest fire, being principally intended to go close to the New Mole and Europa Point. There are already at Algeiras, boats, shallops, &c. carrying mortars and guns, from 36 to 48 pounders. The same letters add, that the garrison of Gibraltar has received fresh provisions by several ships, no less than 17 having entered that place within the last month, inasmuch that the above said garrison, so far from being alarmed at the recommencement of the siege, appear very much rejoiced at it.

The Brest fleet will sail some time this month, under the command of M. de la Motte Piquet. This armament will be pretty considerable; to-morrow the troops will begin to embark.

We are assured that a camp is to be formed on the coasts of Brittany of 30,000 men, under command of M. de Broglie.

ANECDOTES of the famous WESTONS, who robbed the Bristol Mail.

JOSEPH and George Weston, apprehended on Wednesday last by the officers of the police in Bow-street, for robbing the Bristol mail in 1781, near Cranford Bridge, are two of the most remarkable depredators that have appeared in this country since the days of the famous Wild.

Immediately after their plundering the cart containing the Bristol mail, George, who is the younger brother, dressed himself in the habit of a footman, and went round the country, for the purpose of procuring money for the bills they had taken; he was suspected, and pursued to London some time since, but escaped in St Paul's church-yard. He soon afterwards joined his brother Joseph; and, about six months ago, they, in partnership, took a very neat farm called Friars, but a small distance from the sea, and near the town of Winchelsea in Sussex. Here they lived in splendor until their late detection, Joseph assuming the name of William Johnson, and George that of Samuel Watson. They visited the first people in the neighbourhood of Winchelsea; kept a very handsome equipage, a stable of excellent hunters, a pack of the best terriers, and enjoyed the pleasures of the chase in a style superior to most gentlemen in that part of the country.

On their taking this farm, they employed Mess. Elliot and Co. of New Bond-street, to furnish the house, which was accordingly done, and in a very neat manner. They also took up a considerable quantity of jewellery from Mr Davis, who lives in the same street. A lack of payment induced one of those gentlemen to sue out a writ against them; and, at the morning last, the officers met both Joseph and George; at the morning Rye. The men who were to execute the process, attempted to pull Joseph off his horse; but the two brothers presented a case of pistols, and clapping spurs to their horses, escaped to the metropolis. A gentleman who was then at Rye, and had seen the whole transaction, first suggested the idea of their being the two Westons who robbed the Bristol mail. Their persons answering the description given in the daily publications, an express was immediately dispatched to the Post-office, and from thence notice was sent to the Police in Bow-street. A diligent and spirited search immediately took place. That very active officer Mr Clark, made the most minute inquiries; and at last received information that they were concealed at the house of one Clements, who keeps a hotel in Noel-street, Soho. Mr Clark, about nine o'clock, went to this house, and enquired if there were not two men there of such a description; the man of the house said, "he could not tell." At this moment Mr Clark observed the wife of Clements going up stairs; and in a few minutes after, the two Westons came down with their hands in their pockets. They instantly passed Mr Clark, and so near as to touch his coat. Having got out at the street door, they immediately ran down Noel street, from thence made their way into Great Marlborough-street; being closely pursued, they fired several pistols, but without doing any other mischief than grazing the ear of a hair-dresser, who was passing at the moment. They were at length apprehended, and carried, about eleven o'clock on Wednesday morning, before the sitting Magistrate in Bow-street.

Information having been sent to the Post-office that the two Westons were in custody, Mr Parkin, the Solicitor, attended. On searching Joseph Weston, bank post-bills to the amount of 240 l. which were taken out of the mail-cart at Cranford-bridge, were found in his pocket. After an examination, which lasted till seven in the evening, they were committed to separate prisons, Joseph to Tothillfields Bridewell, and George to New Prison.

The first of these extraordinary villains was convicted of forgery at Warwick assizes about five years ago; but two or three nights previous to his execution, broke prison; and notwithstanding the most diligent search was made after him, had the address to elude his pursuers.

The principal confidant of these depredators was the famous Lucius Hughes, who was employed to accommodate their wives in town with lodging, and to supply them with every necessary they wanted. Strict search is making after this fellow; and from the great activity of Mr Wright, and the gentlemen presiding at the police, we may expect that in a short time this notorious fellow will be apprehended, and the whole gang effectually annihilated.

The Westons, who are in custody for robbing the mail, yesterday gave a bill of sale of their effects, with which a messenger was immediately dispatched to Winchelsea. In their plate alone, at the price of old silver, will produce upwards of two thousand pounds. They will not be executed till next week, on account of some witnesses being in the city.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, Monday, April 22.

REPORTED the resolves of Friday last relative to the Navy.

Passed the Southwark Court, and Ship Ransom bills.

The House having then resolved itself into a Committee of Supply, the Secretary of War moved several sums for the service of the army, which were granted.

The House being resumed, the Lord Advocate moved the order of the day, for going into a Committee, to take into consideration the report from the Secret Committee on India affairs.

Sir Thomas Bumbold got up and said, that notwithstanding the most unremitted attention, he had not been able to prepare his defence against the charges conveyed against him, in the 12th, 13th, and 14th of the last 24 resolutions, which had been read to the Committee on a former day by the learned Lord. He did not wish to throw the least delay in the way of the proposed enquiry, therefore would agree to the first eleven resolutions, trusting that the Committee would indulge him with time to move for such papers from the India House as should be necessary for his justification. This being assented to, and the Speaker having left the Chair, which was taken by Sir George Howard.

The Lord Advocate moved four resolutions, which being carried, he next drew a very lamentable picture of the state of the country which was in the hands of the Zemindars, who, by the wretched policy of the Company's servants, were so reduced that they were not able to pay their rents. He moved therefore the following resolution:

5. "That it appears that the balances due by the Zemindars, and by the renters of the Company's lands in the Northern Circars, have very much increased of late; and that the Zemindars are in general much distressed, and involved in large debts."

Sir Adam Ferguson said, the country was in a state of rapid decline, as would appear, when it was heard that a few years ago the balances due to us by the Zemindars did not exceed six lacks of pagodas, but had since gone on increasing, till they amounted in the year 1780 to the sum of seventeen lacks: The Company must see, measures, to save that country from total destruction.

Sir Thomas Bumbold did not deny the picture given of the state of the country; but said he had been long on the decline, before he was sent out to govern it, as would appear from the reports on the table.

The 12th resolution being carried, the Lord Advocate moved:

6. "That it appears, that besides the tribute payable to the Company, it had been the practice for the Chiefs of the subordinate settlements to receive from the Zemindars certain large sums of money, under the name of nazirs, or free gift."

Mr Wilkinson blamed the Company, as much as their servants, for suffering such practices to prevail. He had reared up a young lad from the age of eleven years, and sent him out to India, after giving him the most wholesome advice. He was happy to find that his instructions had not been lost. The lad had constantly refused to accept these nazirs. He himself (Mr Wilkinson) had made known such meritorious conduct to the Directors; but, instead of rewarding so rare an instance of self-denial, the young Gentleman was wholly neglected; and, he understood, was now actually in debt, instead of having made a fortune.

This resolution having passed, the Lord Advocate came to a seventh and eighth resolution, on the latter of which he observed, that, by a strange kind of policy, the Jaghire Lands had been let to the Nabob of Arcot, when it must be obvious to any man, that the Nabob ought to be the last person in the world to have them; yet they were given to him for three years, contrary to the orders of the Directors. He moved, therefore,

8. "That it appears, that the Jaghire Lands, with the district of Poonamallee, being almost the whole of the territory contiguous to Fort St George, have been uniformly let to the Nabob of the Carnatic."

General Smith pointed out the wretched policy of letting these lands to the Nabob, as, by having them, he became complete master of all the military operations of Madras, so that, without his consent, it would be absolutely impossible for that presidency to bring 500 men into the field.

Sir Thomas Bumbold said, there were many cogent reasons which had made it necessary, in his opinion, to let the lands to the Nabob. They were in a very bad condition, the canals through which the waters that fertilized the country were to be conveyed, were greatly out of repair, and the rent had run one year in arrears. He had advertised the Jaghire, and found that the bidders who offered wanted only such villages and districts as were in good condition, but would not take the rest. One man indeed offered to take the whole on a lease for ten years. The Nabob had offered to take the Jaghire for five years; the Presidency gave it to him at three, on condition that he should repair the Canals. He did so: And the consequences were, that in two years, the rent of three years, including the arrears, was discharged. He had acquainted the Court of Directors of his conduct, in giving the Jaghire to the Nabob for three years; and the only observation they made on the subject was, that they were sorry he had not been able to make the Nabob take the Jaghire for one year.

Mr Burke condemned the whole of this conduct. The rent at first had been so high, that the Nabob had fled his subjects till they were obliged to quit the country, and then it went to ruin. The Nabob had afterwards ground the face of his other subjects to make good his engagements for the Jaghire, and, by remaining in the neighbourhood of Madras, impressed the powers of India with an idea that he had the complete control of the company. The Jaghire, therefore, he said, ought not to have been given him; and then he would have been obliged to reside where it became him, in his own capital of Arcot.

The 8th resolution having passed, the Lord Advocate went on to the 9th, making many curious observations on the manner in which the Nabob's debts were accumulated, and concluded by moving,

9. "That it appears that the Nabob is loaded with heavy debts, both to the Company and to individuals; that his troops are ill paid, and have deserted in great numbers, and frequently broke out into dangerous mutinies on that account."

On this resolution, Mr Macdonald observed, that there was such things as good and bad debts, true debts, and sham debts; and he believed these distinctions might be found in the debts of the Nabob; for, if a proper enquiry were to take place, his real debts would be found to be very small indeed: But the servants of the Company had given birth to those debts, for purposes that might occur to every thinking man; and in pursuit of these purposes, the Nabob, though a great and illustrious Prince, was sometimes treated with as little ceremony as a bankrupt chieftain at Guildhall, his lands being given up to assignees to pay his debts, and such too as had never been really contracted.

Sir Thomas Bumbold replied, that these debts had not been created during his government; and of his instructions on going out, was even to enquire how they had been accumulated.

Mr Burke said, that if Parliament should rest satisfied with such answers, there would soon be an end to our empire in India. This resolution having passed,

The Lord Advocate made some observations on the present deplorable state of the Tanjore country, which, from being the Paradise in India, was now so reduced, that scarce a trace remained of its former splendor and fertility; the causes of such a revolution, he had already stated at his opening; there remained, therefore, only for him to mention the causes, which he stated in the two following propositions:

10. "That it appears, that the revenues of Tanjore are greatly diminished, and the country itself much on the decline."

11. "That it appears, that, besides what may be imputed to bad Administration, one cause of that decline has been an opinion prevailing in the country, that the Rajah's government would not be of long continuance, and that another revolution was approaching."

Mr Macdonald defended the kingdom of Tanjore as one of the most delightful countries the sun ever saw; but though it was such by nature, yet from the causes stated in the resolutions, it was at present in the most deplorable state that a country could be in. However, such was nature of the soil, that he hoped by the measures now likely to be adopted, it would in two or three years time be restored to its former state of beauty and fertility. This nation was bound to proceed to that restoration; both its interest and honour was at stake; and he made no doubt but Parliament, before the end of the present session, would restore the British character in India. It was with pleasure he informed the Committee, that he had received a letter from a friend at Vienna, in which the writer tells him, that he had heard at the table of a Minister at that Court, that his Imperial Majesty had publicly declared, that as a friend to mankind, he rejoiced at the steps likely to be taken by the British Parliament, to secure happiness to their subjects in India, and retrieve the honour of their country, which the rapacity of the Company's servants had so shamefully tarnished.

General Smith took this opportunity to discharge a debt of gratitude to the late Rajah of Tanjore, from whom he had experienced the greatest kindness, by endeavouring to secure to his successor the peaceable enjoyment of the throne.

Mr Burke described, in the most pathetic manner, the wretched situation of the Rajah of Tanjore, who had experienced the wretchedness at the hands of the Presidency of Madras, that he was compelled to correspond with them in the Persian language, with which he was unacquainted; from which circumstance he was obliged to employ a Mahomedan interpreter, who, by his religion, was a friend to the Nabob of Arcot, who laid claim to the Tanjore country.

Sir Thomas Bumbold accounted for this by saying, that the Mahatta language was very difficult, and it was much easier to get an interpreter for the Persian language. The 20th and 11th resolutions being passed, it was then agreed not to proceed farther till Sir Thomas Bumbold should have some papers which he wanted. It was moved, therefore, that Sir George Howard report progress, and ask leave to sit again; which being carried, the House was resumed, and at eight o'clock adjourned.

From the London Papers, April, 23.

L O N D O N.

No political information of consequence has been received at any of the public offices since our last.

This morning some dispatches were received from Gibraltar, by which we are informed, that they had received a fresh supply of provisions, &c.

A report was circulated last night, that the French fleet, consisting of 8 line of battle ships, under command of Monsi. Piquet, with 50 sail of transports, sailed from Brest the same day as Admiral Barrington was off Plymouth, and that he had been apprized of it, and was gone in quest of them; it is said the French fleet is bound to Rhode Island. Should this be the case there is every reason to hope the brave Barrington will give a good account of them.

Yesterday a great many letters were delivered at the Post office from Barbadoes, brought over in the Sally, Capt. Tubman. She sailed from thence the beginning of March, and brings a confirmation of the capture of Demerary and Essequibo, by three men of war and six hundred troops. The Grantham packet, with the January mail, failed from thence for Jamaica the 16th of February; but neither the Swift nor Swallow packets were arrived when she failed.

Ministry are very anxious for intelligence from the West-Indies, not having received any dispatches from Admirals Rodney and Hood since their junction; some people are inclined to think that our fleet has blocked up the Spanish Squadron in Prince Rupert's bay, Dominica; and others suppose they are lying off Martinico to intercept the French convoy, which failed from Brest the 11th of February, consisting of three line of battle ships, and 70 merchantmen; if they should be so fortunate as to fall in with this valuable fleet, it may alter the complexion of our affairs very much, as they are loaded with all kind of military stores.

By private letters lately received from India, certain advice is received, that a Squadron of English men of war, with troops, supposed to be those under General Meadows, part of Commodore Johnstone's fleet, had taken the Dutch settlement of Cochin, near Cape Cormoran; and it was reported that a strong force was also gone against Trincomally, the principal fortresses of the Dutch on the island of Ceylon.

It is now said with confidence, that as we are likely to fail in our overtures for peace with Holland, a negotiation will be immediately opened at the fountain-head, and that France itself is much inclined to the measure.

In case overtures for peace should commence with France, it is said independence must be given to America; Canada to revert back to France, giving back the islands she has taken; Spain to have Gibraltar and Minorca ceded to them, and to give us the island of Porto Rico.

According to letters from Versailles, a Russian of great distinction arrived there a few weeks ago, supposed to be charged with some dispatches from his Court relative to a peace with Holland.

The new proprietary Committee sat this morning at the East India House for the first time, in order to examine into the state of the Company's affairs.

A court of Directors was also held at the East India House to seal dispatches; which are to be sent on board the packet now waiting to receive them at Falmouth.

The outward-bound East-India fleet, it is thought, will not be able to fail before the latter end of May, or beginning of June.

Lord Rockingham persists in his refusal to receive any salary as first Lord of the Treasury; it is therefore imagined, that it will be divided, as in his former administration, amongst the Clerks in that office. His Lordship permits the salary to be received, not to injure his successors by an unenviable precedent, which, though not injurious to a man of his property, might render the post untenable to a man whose abilities might merit the appointment, but whose fortune might be too small to preserve the dignity of the place without the emolument.

According to the Dutch letters, they expect the Empress of Russia will drop her mediation for a peace between England and Holland, if the States separate again without coming to some conclusion on that head.

The report of the province of Utrecht, conveying their approbation of the general resolution for acceding to the admission of Mr Adams, as Ambassador from the United States of America, is couched in terms that merit the particular attention of our readers:—

"Having heard the report of Mr de Westerveld, and other Deputies from their Noble Mightinesses for the war department, who, by virtue of the Commissorial resolutions of the 9th of May 1781, the 16th of January and 20th of March, in the present year 1782, having examined the resolutions of their High Mightinesses of the 4th of May, 1781, containing the overture made to the assembly of their High Mightinesses by the President, 'That a person, called John Adams, had been with him, and had informed him, that he had received letters of credence for their High Mightinesses, on the part of the United States of North-America, with a request that he would acquaint their High Mightinesses of it; and likewise the resolutions of their High Mightinesses of the 9th of January, 1782, containing a further overture on the part of the President, 'That the said Mr Adams had been again at his house, and had insisted upon a categorical answer, whether they would accept of the above mentioned letter of credence or not?' and finally, the resolution of their High Mightinesses of the 5th of last March, together with the insertion of the resolution of Friesland, containing a proposal 'for the admission of Mr Adams in quality of minister of the Congress of North-America; upon which having deliberated, and seeing that the States of Holland, and West Friesland, by their resolution transmitted on the 28th of March to the States General, have also consented to the admission of the said Mr Adams, in quality of minister of the Congress of North-America, it has been found good and decreed, That the Deputies of this province to the States General shall be authorized, as their Noble Mightinesses by the present do authorize them, to concur in the name of this Province, with the resolutions of the States of Holland, West Friesland, and Friesland, and consequently to consent, that Mr Adams should be acknowledged and admitted as minister of the United States of North-America. Their Noble Mightinesses being at the same time of opinion, that information ought to be given of the resolution to be taken by their High Mightinesses on this subject, to her Majesty the Empress of Russia, and the other neutral powers, acquainting them (as far as it is necessary) with the reasons which have influenced their High Mightinesses, giving them the strongest assurances, that the intention of their High Mightinesses is not by any means to prolong the war, which they would willingly have prevented, and have terminated long since; but, on the contrary, that their High Mightinesses wish for nothing more ardently than a speedy re-establishment of peace; and that they will find themselves always ready, on their part, to co-operate, for producing it, in every possible manner, and with the utmost facility, provided it should be, in any degree, compatible with their honour and dignity."

The new cabinet, now consisting of eleven members, is equally divided as follows, viz. two threes, two twos, and a single one; so that when any matter of importance comes to be debated by them, their decision is not likely to arise from the unanimity of his Majesty's counsellors.

By the present dearth of news from every quarter of the globe, it should seem that the new ministry had kept their word; and that Great Britain, who had lately so many powers to contend with, was now at peace with all the world.

When Lieutenant-General Burgoyne kissed hands on his late appointment, the only question asked him by his Majesty was, "Whether he had ever been in that kingdom?" to which he replied in the negative.

The Lord Advocate is the man to whom Administration now pay their principal court: The most flattering overtures have been made him, but hitherto his Lordship has turned a deaf ear to them all!

The grand fleet will certainly fail to relieve Gibraltar as soon as the time of Admiral Barrington's cruise expires, and that part of the intended Squadron returns to the Channel.

Lord Howe is at Portsmouth, in order to get every ship ready for sea as fast as possible; the men are constantly kept at work; for as one set comes off, another set goes on, which greatly hastens the work.

As soon as the capitulation of St Christopher's was concluded, the Marquis de Bouille appointed Count Dillon Governor of the island; and the King of France has been since pleased to confirm the appointment, on account of the bravery of that gallant young Nobleman, whose courage can be surpassed only by his humanity.

Since his Royal Highness Prince William Henry has been elected a Knight of the Garter, it is intended, that as soon as he receives the ensigns of that order, he shall deliver up those of the Thistle, which will be given to his brother Prince Edward; his Majesty's fourth son, who will then be decorated with a Green Ribbon.

The Landgrave of Hesse-Darmstadt has published an Ordinance, by which he grants liberty of conscience to his Roman Catholic subjects, who in future are to be allowed the privilege of being attended in sickness by a Priest of their own religion. This, however, was granted, under condition that his Protestant subjects should have the same indulgence in the neighbouring Catholic States. The Catholic Prince-Bishop of Fulda no sooner heard of this ordinance, than he answered it with another, by virtue of which he grants the Protestant subjects of Darmstadt the desired indulgence in his dominions.

They write from Italy, that after the return of the nobles, whom the Pope had ordered to attend the Grand Duke and Duchess of Russia to the borders of Tuscany, one of the wheels of their Highnesses carriage broke down, at the foot of Mount Viterbo. They had sent all their other carriages before them, and therefore their Imperial Highnesses were obliged to ascend and pass over that steep hill on foot.

Yesterday Council were called to the bar of the house of Peers, to be heard on the appeal of Andrew Watchope, of Nidry, Esq; and others, appellants; and the Governor and Company of undertakers, for raising Thames water in York Buildings, respondents. The Council for the appellants being heard, Earl Mansfield rose up, and in a short speech, gave his reasons for affirming the interlocutor, and accordingly moved, "That the interlocutor complained of, be affirmed, and that the appellants do pay the respondents 100 l. costs, which, upon the question put by the Lord Chancellor to the House, was ordered accordingly."

Extract of a letter from Leghorn, dated March 29.
"A cartel ship, in three days from Mahon, arrived here on the 23d instant. She has on board General Murray, a few officers, and a number of passengers; from them we learn, that the transports, which are to carry the troops to England, only wait a fair wind."
Extract of a letter from Paris, April 12.
"The opinion here is, that we shall have a general peace this summer. Several persons have arrived from London within these few days; and their business, it is said, is on the subject of accommodation of the disputes, which have subsisted between the Courts of Versailles and London. Couriers daily arrive from Amsterdam and Vienna; and it is confidently asserted, that a Congress will be held this summer at Vienna or Brussels, under the mediation of the Emperor and the Empress of Russia, to bring about a general peace with all the belligerent powers. The Court of London refused last year to allow the subject of America be mentioned, otherwise a Congress would then have taken place; but as that objection can now no longer exist, we have little doubt of that desirable event taking place this year. Though France has been very successful, yet the most ardently wishes for a general peace, for her finances are most miserably exhausted."

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Lisbon, to his friend in Bandon, dated the 25th of March 1782.
"A Portuguese ship is arrived from the Brazils; in her came passengers a French officer in the Spanish service, and two Spanish officers, all to Spain with expresses; the Frenchman speaks openly, that the revolt in South America has got to the highest pitch; that for some hundred leagues not a Spaniard is to be seen, and that it is incredible what a number of them the Indians have killed. I am vastly pleased at this intelligence, as it will turn their attention that way, and draw part of their forces to that quarter, and of course weaken them in Europe."
"There are people in town from Gibraltar, who left the garrison the 10th instant; eight or ten vessels have got in there amongst them a large store-ship from London, and several with fresh provisions. The Barbary ports are again opened, so that they will be better supplied. The King of Spain thinks more about taking Gibraltar than of the rebellion in South America, which threatens to deprive him of that valuable part of his possessions."

Extract of a letter from Plymouth, April 20.
"Just arrived a cutter, with dispatches from Admiral Barrington, dated at sea, which were sent up immediately to London."

EDINBURGH.
Extract of a private letter from London, April 23.
"Accounts are arrived this afternoon at the Admiralty, that Admiral Barrington has fallen in with a French convoy off Brest, and taken several of them, supposed from 17 to 23.
"I have not been able to learn any particulars, only that five or six are certainly arrived at Plymouth.
"The report we have had for several days, of Lord Keppel's retiring, is not much credited. The idea of peace with Holland is subdued, and stocks are considerably fallen.
"Mr Elwes reported in the House of Commons, that the Committee for trying the Forster election had declared in favour of Archibald Douglas, Esq;
"It is generally believed, that the Scots Bankrupt Law will pass this session of Parliament, notwithstanding the great opposition it is likely to meet with."
Thursday arrived in Leith Roads, the Perseus frigate of 28 guns, the Sprightly and Brazen cutters of 14 guns each, with the fleet from London for the Frith under their convoy, all safe.
Wednesday last was married here, the Reverend Mr George Smith, minister of the gospel at Galfon, to Miss Marion Freer, daughter of the deceased Adam Freer of Innerneath, Esq;
On Sunday last, died at her house of Kinkell, Lady Mackenzie, widow of Sir Alexander Mackenzie of Garloch Baront.

Robert Taylor, Esq; of Borrowfield, died upon the 24th instant at Borrowfield. His relations and friends will accept of this notification of his death.

We hear Mr Sheridan's celebrated Entertainment of the Camp, is getting up at considerable expence, for Miss Kirby's benefit, which is fixed for Saturday 14th May, when she will appear in the character of Nancy, as performed by her three successive seasons, with very great applause, at the Theatre Royal Drury Lane.
We hear from Perth, that the inhabitants are reduced to great distress by the want of coal, owing to the easterly winds, which prevents their being supplied by sea in the ordinary way. Would it not be worth while to send coals there by land carriage?

An advice cutter, in the service of Government, this day arrived at Leith. She came from Shetland on Wednesday last, where she spoke the Profelyte and Cleopatra frigates, neither of which, at that time, had seen any enemy. The reports from Shetland are, that the Dutch fleet, with a number of frigates and merchantmen, supposed for the West-Indies, had passed that place, steering that course.

Thursday last, was brought to town, by a messenger, and lodged in the tolbooth, James Robb, formerly a merchant in Dundee. He was incarcerated in the year 1772, for a debt incurred to government, and found means to make his escape, on the night of Saturday the 13th of February 1773, by cutting the iron stanchels of the window in the room where he was confined, and letting himself down from thence to the street by a rope. The messenger who went in search of Robb, apprehended him in the county of Norfolk, by virtue of a warrant of the Sheriff of this county, backed by the chief magistrate of the town of Lynn Regis, and the Sheriff of the county of Norfolk. Mr Williamson was the Messenger dispatched on the above business, in consequence of information received at the Custom-house here from the Custom house at Boston in Lincolnshire. But when the Messenger arrived there, he found Robb had gone to the county of Norfolk, where he was accordingly apprehended.

On Saturday the 13th instant, a private man belonging to the Herefordshire militia, then quartered at Shrewsbury, eat a whole shoulder of veal roasted, which weighed nine pounds and an half, entirely at one meal. — the astonishment of several farmers, who treated him with it. We are also assured that a few mornings before he eat above five pounds of solid beef for his breakfast; and would have eaten more if he could have got it. Birmingham Gazette.

In the morning of the 13th inst. the sloop Good Intent, U-rah Pitt, master, loaded with potatoes from Gainbrough, bound for London, was unfortunately overset on Wilton sands, in the Humber; by which accident the master, mate, pilot, and one of the fore-mast men, lost their lives. One man and a little boy were found floating upon a raft, and were up alive. The vessel, after having broke her masts, yards, bowsprit, and almost every timber upon deck, was driven ashore in the Ouse near Witgift Ferry, with very little of her cargo saved.

Yesterday night, a house in the village of Shettleston, two miles from Glasgow, was broke into, and a considerable quantity of goods and cash carried off; the perpetrators of which are not yet discovered.

Saturday last, betwixt nine and ten o'clock forenoon, a fire broke out in a saddler's work-shop above the cross, Glasgow, which, at first, had a very alarming appearance; a wright shop being adjoining, wherein was a large quantity of wood; but by the timely assistance of the neighbours, it was happily extinguished without doing much damage.

Sunday night, about eleven o'clock, a fire broke out in a thatched house in the village of Govan, two miles from this city, which entirely consumed the same, as also, three dwelling houses adjoining. — By the assistance of the neighbourhood it was happily prevented from spreading any further.

Extract of a letter from Dublin, April 20.
"It is said a motion will be made in the House of Commons, next week, with the approbation of Government, for leave to bring in heads of a bill to oblige certain officers of state to reside in this kingdom — or vacate their employments. The persons who will principally, at this time, be affected by this bill, are "The Right Hon. Richard Rigby, Master of the Rolls.
"The Right Hon. the Earl of Hillsborough, Register of the Court of Chancery.
"Charles Fitzroy Scudamore, Esq; Curator of ditto.
"The Duke of Devonshire, Lord Treasurer of Ireland.
"Right Hon. W. G. Hamilton, Chancellor of the Exchequer.
"Right Hon. Charles Jenkinson, Clerk of the Pells.
"It is worthy of remark, that the House of Lords of Ireland, in the reign of Charles the First, addressed the King, that the Master of the Rolls should be a resident of this kingdom, and that no titles of nobility derived from Ireland should be conferred on any who were not possessors of property therein.
"It is with inexpressible concern that the friends of liberty must regret the present very indifferent state of health of Henry Grattan, Esq; — he has been, for some time past, labouring under a very painful complaint, which his exertion in the public cause prevented paying that attention to his physicians declared absolutely necessary — his speech on Tuesday last considerably affected a constitution at best but delicate. He is now confined to his room, yet we are assured that every symptom is as favourable as the faculty could expect."

"Mr Grattan has hitherto declined the repeated solicitation of naming whatever he pleased to accept of — he has generously declared he will support, without place, pension, or emolument, the present Administration, as long as they support the rights and promote the real interests of Ireland.
"We hear, heads of a bill, similar to the bill brought into the British House of Commons, will be moved for here in a few days, by the Right Hon. Henry Flood, for the purpose of incapacitating officers in the revenue from voting, at elections for members of Parliament.
"Never was the departure of a Lord Lieutenant from this kingdom so sincerely regretted by a great number of persons as that of Lord Carlisle, as unfeigned marks of sorrow were observed in the countenances of several of his Lordship's friends, who made part of the train that accompanied him out of town. This sorrow was no doubt disinterested, and occasioned by the loss only of so excellent a chief Governor.
"Mr Eden lived in that style of splendid magnificence, since his arrival in Ireland, that it is generally calculated he has not expended less than 15,000 l. though the actual receipts of his office, during that period, has not produced more than 5000 l. so that he actually pockets a loss of 10,000 l."

We hear that there is now in the press, and will be speedily published,
THE TEARS OF THE BRITONS.

THIS history contains a period of about nineteen years, during which these people were not afflicted with famine, nor with pestilence, nor with national poverty, nor with any visible judgment of God; and, nevertheless, they fell from a state of power and of glory, to a state of discord, weakness, diminution, and contempt.

Scottown, Dr William Thom advocate in Aberdeen, and Alexander Leith of Freefield, in trust for the behoof of his creditors, in manner following:

In LOT I. the LANDS and BARONY of CUSHNY, comprehending the particular towns, lands, and others contained in the title-deeds of the same, with the right of patronage of the parish-kirk of Cushny, all lying in the parish of Cushny and county of Aberdeen; the free-rent of which, after deducting minister's stipend, cess, and all other public burdens, is 239 l. 12 s. 11-12ths Sterling of money, 76 bolls 3 firkins and 1-3d peck of meal at nine shillings, 5 bolls 2 firkins 24 pecks of bear, besides a good many customs, services, and carriages, not rented. And for the better accommodation of the forefard estate, there will be annexed thereto, and sold therewith, twenty acres of the Low Moors of Clova, which is at no great distance therefrom. These lands entitle the proprietor to a vote as a freeholder in the county of Aberdeen.

The mansion-house of Cushny is very commodious, and a considerable part of the ground adjacent is under no lease. This estate is of very great extent, of good soil, and capable of much improvement. The Glen of Cushny affords a great deal of fine pasture and good firing. Such of the tacks as subsist expire in a few years.

In LOT II. the LANDS and ESTATE of CLOVA, comprehending the particular towns, lands, and others contained in the title-deeds of the same, all lying within the parishes of Kildrummie, Auchindore, and Kearn, and sheriffdom of Aberdeen, excepting twenty acres of the Low Moors of Clova, to be sold with the Cushny estate as above, and the same to be marked and marched before the roup. The part of these lands lying in the parish of Kearn holds of the Crown, and the rest hold feu of Lord Fife. The free rent of this estate, after deducting feu, minister's stipends, and cess (the last being payable by the tenants), is 318 l. 19 s. 6 d.
2-12ths Sterling, besides a great many customs and services not mentioned. Upon this estate there is a fine large modern house, with proper office-houses and gardens. The farm round the house, just now in Mr Lumsden's possession, is extensive, inclosed, improved, and laid out with taste, and conform to a regular plan. This estate is very extensive, the soil excellent, and capable of much improvement, as there is a good limestone quarry on the lands, with a great deal of fine moor, and the whole of the lands has the command of water. There is a good deal of planting near the house, and a great stretch of hills, very proper for planting or being improved.

If the above estates are not sold in two parts as above, they will be subdivided in smaller lots, and afterwards advertised.

The progress of writs, with copies of the rentals, plan of the Main of Clova, and conditions of sale, will be shown by Henry Lumfden advocate in Aberdeen, to whom, or any of the said trustees, those intending to purchase may apply.

N. B. Those wanting to see the lands may apply at the house of Cushny or Clova.
